dè 'b' nill leat l'what is your will? Curtailed form of ciod e l'what is it? Dè an t-each a th' agad! what an extraordinary horse you have! de, prep. Of, off. According to MacBain, the peculiar custom of confusing this word with do, to, in speaking Gaelic, extends back to Old Irish in pre-accentual de compounds, but the erroneous practice has no doubt largely been increased by the publishers of the Gaelic Scriptures, the instances of the use of do, instead of de making the meaning of the text in Gaelic just the opposite of what the original conveys. It is strange how tenacious some Gaelic writers are of the pernicious custom of using do for both de and do, while it is quite plain that the meaning of one is just the opposite of the other. It is no excuse to say that it is often spoken so (in some places de is practically obsolete) for it is the duty of scholars and those who write or speak Gaelic, to do so correctly, and so help to correct popular errors instead of perpet-uating them. This is only one case among many, where any unprejudiced person can see the absolute necessity of Gaelic being taught in every school, at least in Gaelic speaking districts, to prevent its becoming a mixture of exceptions like English.

An gabh thu roinn dheth sin? will you take a part of that? bheir mi 'a ghlas de 'n dorus, I will take the lock off the door; thug mi 'n ceann de m' ordaig, I took the tip off my thumb. If do be substituted for de in each of above examples, the result is more nonsense.

De mar a bha mo dhalta de 'n chomhraig? how did my foster-son come off in the battle? [De becomes dh' before a vowel, and a dh' if also following a consonant, it aspirates everything following it, and governs the Dative case.

Armailt mhór de dhaoinibh agus a dh' eachaibh, a great army of men and horses; làn de reubainn agus a dh' aingidheachd, full of ravening and wickedness.

De is thus declined in conjunction with the personal pronouns: Sing. diom, of me, diot, of thee, dibh, of you dibh, of you, diubh, of them, deth, of him, diuh, of them, dith, of her.

The initial d is generally aspirated (dhiom, warping, stitches "cast on" for knitting. 12 Mould. 13 Warping-frame.

263. Dealbh (13.) Dealbh-àrd. 263a. Suidheachadh na creiseim.

The warping-frame shown in illust, is known in Uist as "deilbh àrd," and the term deilbh (dealbh) is seldom used in this connection alone. It is called deilbh àrd because the old original, and still usual manner, of warping the thread is by fixing the fuaintean in the clay floor. Consequently, when a frame was constructed and raised up against the wall, it received the name of "deilbh ard." PARTS OF A WARPING-FRAME :-

Crann-deilbhe, crann-dealbha, or beartdheilbh, frame. [bar. Sparr-mullaich, sail-mhullaich, upper cross-

Sparr buinn, sail-bhuinn, lower cross-bar. Bacain, puist, na sailthean cliathaich, side Fuaircean, fuaintean, pinneachan, fuaidnean (sing. fuaidne) pins or?pegs.

Bocsa na deilbhe, bocsa na céirsle, box for holding the clerv.

Croisean, threads on frame. Croiseadh an t-snàtha, is the name of the operation shown Double threads are used, and when here. finished, half the threads are on each side of the creise m-stick.

Dealbhach, thread on frame.

Coniseim. These two pegs on upper crossbar, as in second illust., and two similar ones on lower cross-bar, explain the old form of dealbh formerly in use in Lewis, but the form shown in first illust., is that generally used elsewhere. For modern form as used in Lewis see appendix. The form of winding thread on two top and bottom pegs in lower ill. is called creiseim in Lewis.

There is no Infinitive in Gaelic, b unfortunately the Gaelic Verbal Noun frouently appears in places where in Euglis quently appears in places where in Englis infinitives would be used. A true infinitive cannot govern the genitive case. A participl is a noun, and therefore governs the genitiv case, an infinitive is a verb, and therefor case, an infinitive is a very, and cannot govern a noun in the genitive. Whe one sees a thing called "an infinitive" go concluded that it is a noun, not a verb, an consequently, not an infinitive. Bonnach mhealladh na cloinne, is a bannock for d ceiving of (NOT to deceive) the children; h mhath leis an righ Pàdruig a theachd, translated, the king wished Pat to come, whe as what is meant is, the king wished Pat coming. That teachd=coming and not cor This appears from the following, which curs in MacTalla. "Bu mhath learn iad a d fhàgail nan each," I wish them to leave leaving) of the horses. Now, nan each is contestably a genitive case, therefore it m h' to n. ust rb. have been governed by a noun, not by a ve The Latin amare was an infinitive, so it co ild not govern a genitive, but amatum was a no and declinable like a noun. So was the un old Celtic gerund, or verbal noun, equally decl in. able, and many of them showed a dative of after the preposition de. Cuir in the dati is, to this day, cur, which is its dative. B further, what about "bu mhath leam is dha m' fhàgail." (some write "ga m' fhàgail.") I flow! Jeauls in this great minimals. tse ail")? If fagail equals in this case an infin tive, i. e. if it is to be translated to come, w shall have my to come. In other words, be cause jayail is qualified by a possessive pro noun, or by a possessive adjective, we see that it is a noun, not a verb. My coming, my leaving, are possible, my to come, my to leave are inconceivable. As every one of the so called infinitives can (1) take a possessive adjective, and can (2) govern a noun in the genitive, the conclusion is that these "infinitives" are all nouns and not verbs.]

Prosperous course, turning it ready for me. from east to west in the direction taken by the sun. D. air gach ni, the sunward course (is the best) for everything. This is descriptive of the ceremony observed by the Druids, of walking round their temples, by the south, in the course of their divinations, keeping the temple always on their right. deemed prosperous, the contrary (tuathal) fatal, or at least, unpropitious. From fatal, or at least, this ancient superstition are derived several customs which are still retained amongst us, as drinking over the left thumb, as Toland expresses it, or according to the course of the sun. Martin says," some of the poorer sort of people in the Western Isles retain the custom of performing these circles sunwise about the persons of their benefactors three times, when they bless them, and wish good Some are success to all their enterprises.

very careful, when they set out to sea, that the boat be first rowed sunwise, and if this be neglected, they are afraid their voyage may prove unfortunate. I had this ceremony paid ne when in Islay by a poor woman, after I had given her an alms. I desired her to let alone that compliment, for that I did not care for it; but she insisted to make these three ordinary turns, and then prayed that God and MacCharmaig, the patron saint of that island, might bless and prosper me in all my affairs. When a Gael goes to drink out of a consecrated fountain, he approaches it by going round the place from east to west, and at funerals, the procession observes the same Hence direction in drawing near the grave. also is derived the old custom of describing sunwise a circle, with a burning brand, about houses, cattle, corn and corn-fields, to prevent their being burnt, or in any way injured by evil spirits, or by witchcraft. This fiery cir-cle was also made around women, as soon as possible after parturition, and also around newly-born babes. These circles were, in later times, described by midwives, and were deemed effectual against the intrusion of the daoine sith or sithichean, who were particularly on the alert in times of childbed, and not infrequently carried infants away, according to vulgar legends, and restored them afterwards, but sadly altered in features and in personal Infants stolen by fairies are appearance. said to have voracious appetites, constantly craving for food. In this case it was usual for those who believed that their children had been taken away, to dig a grave in the fields on quarter-day and there to lay the fairy skeleton till next morning, at which time the parents went to the place, where they doubt-ed not to find their own child in place of the skeleton." deisealachd, s.f.ind. tdò, a. see dà. do, prep. To (i.e. unto.) o, prep. To (i.e. unto.) [Aspirates word following, and governs the Dative case. It is often dh^{λ} , or redundantly do dh^{λ} , or a dh, before dh^{λ} . fore a word commencing with a vowel. or a dh' Eirinn, le went to Ireland; chaidh iad a Phort-righ, or chaidh iad Phort-righ, they went to Portree.

Do is joined with the personal pronouns thus:—domh, to me; duit, to thee; da, to him; di, to her ; duinn, to us ; duibh, to you ; doibh, to them. These prepositional pronouns are generally aspirated.

Do is a remarkable preposition too subtle to analyze, but the examples given below give a analyze, but the examples given below give a fair idea of its different meaning in various contexts. Do 'n duine, to the man; do d' mhàthair, to thy mother; do mo réir-sa, according to my views; gùr pailt liagh do na ràmhan na lùnn, the blaues of the oars are too big for the oars; a dh' olc no a dh' eiginn [or a chòir no a dh' eugcoir, or a dheòin no a dh' aindeoin, Josmehow or other, by hook or by crook, willy nilly. As a prepositional pronoun:— Is aithne dhomh sin, I know that; is math dhomh sin, that is well (good) for me; is léir dhomh. I can see; leig dhomh, permit me; dé 'dh' éirich dhuit? what has befallen thee? nach ann domh a dh' éirich! to me what evil has beann dount a un eiten i a me unue evu das per fallen I cha'n 'eil dhomh ach-, all that is ne-cessary for me is—; leig dhomh, let me alone, (also leig leam); roimh tighinn dhuinn, before we came; inhothaich e da ged a bha e uaig-neach, he perceived (to) it though it was in secret; is dona an ceann sin dhuit, that is against your health; an urrainn duit ceann a thoirt dhaibh? are you able to vanquish them? (lit. a.

head to give them), [also are you able to face them I]; oidhche dhomh 'sa bheinn-sheilg, I being one night in the hunting mountain; ri teachd dhomh, just as I was arriving; an déidh dhomh falbh, after I had gone; an àm dhomh dol sìos, when I go down (to battle); an dhomh and a cadal duinn, both when we are asseep and awake: a' falbh à Loch nam-madadh dhunn, when we again from tach Mathe, via dhunu, when we, going from Loch Maddy; cia as duit? whence have you come? also where was your birth-place? bhiodh an aireamh diom-buan doibh, their number would soon be reduced for them; is dithis duinn sin, mu'n dubbairt on them; dubhairt an fheannaig mu a casan, they 're a pair, as the crow said of her legs; bu lion-mhoire dhuit 'shracadh ann, na cùnntas shlat an cliabh, you could find more rents in it than withins in a basket; gur e dhùisg mo she na-chas domh..., what caused my muse to awake is..; 'muair dhùisgear ascaoin duit, when your anger be awakened; theirig gual domh, my coal has given out; cha'n e am bord a theirig dhuit, ach am beagan fearainn, it is not the plough that failed you, but that there was not enough (and; a réir fios domh, as far as I know; ma's fior daibh féin, if they may be believed; fhuair mi fios bho phiuthar dhomh, I got word from a sister of mine; chuala mi an t-òran sin aig caraid domh, I heard that song being sung by a friend of mine; ma's e bàs dhomh gu ma h-e dhuite! if it be a case of death for me may it be so to you ! is pailte bru na biadh dha, -said to a glutton; mar a chì. thear dha, as circumstances may warrant.

For note on the pernicious practice of confounding do and de, see under de. do, poss.pron. Thy, thine. [Aspirates its noun, and there is a pernicious practice of dropping the cafter pranocitions ending in yours.] the o after prepositions ending in vowel, even before consonant initials, as do d'unhac, to thy son, which must be guarded against,] Do lamh, thy hand; do threagairt, thine answer. [T before a vowel, t' athair, thy father.]
do, particle, placed before verbs, but not the sign of the past tense, as is often stated. An do fhreagair e ? did he answer ?

do, worn down in most districts to dh' or a, is still retained in Suth'd before the infinitive, and in certain phrases. Nach 'eil thu dol do shuidhe? are you not going to sit?; tha e dol do shealltainn ort, he is going to see you; do dh' fheuch unn (for a dh'); dol do ghabhail, going to (a.ce. do, substitute for a dh' in Suth'd. Cha toir a' bhò am bainne d' easbhuidh flach, the cow will not give her mille without its equivalent.

do, negative initial particle of the same import as Latin and English in, or English un, implying sometimes difficulty, sometimes implying sometimes important to the same interest to the same in possibility. [Aspirares consonants following.] Compounds of do not found below, can be translated by finding the meaning of the second portion, and placing in- or -un before it. doacal, -ai, s.m. and it is only when Christianity had been long established and druidism had become a thing of the remote past, that we have writers who speak of the druids, and then only refer to them as magicians and diviners, sometimes only as conjurers; there is no hint of either philosophy or religion in Druidism. They surrounded kings and chiefs. The power of the Tuatha Dé Danann, the pre-eminent masters of druidic art, over the forces of nature shows them to have been degraded gods. The Druids opposed Columba and Patrick with darkness. A blow from their wand caused transformation and spells. Their sacred wood was not the oak, as in Gaul, but yew, haw-thorn and especially the rowan. Divination thorn and especially the rowan. Divination by watching smoke and flame, chewing raw flesh (cf. Fionn's thumb), &c., was one of their chief occupations. Bards were sometimes diviners, thus apparently showing an ancient connection with the Druids. Sometimes we have an echo of the time when Druidism was something more than mere wizardry, and even when human sacrifices were offered (for example, the Columba and Odhran story.) Prof Rhys sums up :- At the time of Cæsar, the Druids were a powerful class—soothsayers, magicians and priests. In Gaul, under the magicians and priests. influence of Mediterranean civilization, they were also philosophers, and discoursed on the stars, the world, the nature of things and the power of the gods. Rhys thinks Druidism non-Aryan, MacBain does not. The following remarks by foreign writers were made while druidism was still practised aud full particulars easily obtainable. accuracy of Latin writers on the military and domestic arrangements of the Celts is well known, so their remarks about the druids are probably quite as reliable.

Diodorus Siculus calls attention to the druidic doctrine that the souls of men were immortal, and that after the lapse of an appointed number of years they came to life again, the soul then entering another body.

Julius Cæsar says the Druids were occupied with religious matters, conducted public and private sacrifices, and interpreted omens. They were the teachers of the country, and judges in public and private disputes, awarding damages and penalties. Any contumacy in reference to their judgments was punished by exclusion from the sacrifices-the severest punishment among Gauls. Men so punished was chosen by the vote of the Druids. Some times the primacy was not decided without arbitrament of arms. Cæsar mentions the belief that their doctrines originated in Britaiu, and were carried from thence into Gaul. The Druids were immune from military service Druids were immune from military service and payment of tribute. They were said during their training, which sometimes lasted twenty years, to learn by heart a large number of verses. They held it wrong to put their religious teaching in writing. Their cardinal doctrine was the transmigration of souls, and this was a supreme incentive to valour, by making the fear of death count for nothing. They discussed the stars and their motions, the size of the universe and the earth, the nature and the might and power of the the nature and the might and power of the immortal gods. They presided at the human sacrifices, which might be public or private.

Cicero says the Druids possessed knowledge of natural science, and forefold the future. Origen says they practised sorcery. Strabo refers to them as judges, philoso-phers and divines, says they were held in exphers and urnes, says they were next in ex-ceptional honour, and mentions their belief in immortality. No sacrifice could be made without the presence of a Druid. They were in great request in time of war, being con-sulted alike by the enemy and those of their own side. Even when two armies were on the point of going to battle, Druids have been able to stop them.

Lucan refers to the seclusion of the Druids' groves and their belief in immortality.

Pliny refers to their veneration of the mistletoe, and the tree on which it grew (if an oak.) hence their predilection for oak-groves, and the requirement of oak-leaves for all re-ligious rites. He mentions a serpent-egg, pro-duced from the frothy sweat of snakes writhing together in a ball.

Ammianus Marcellinus says they were close ly linked together into confraternities, and declared the soul immortal.

Cæsar includes under the term druid all non-military professional classes—whether priests, seers, teachers, lawyers or judges. To others, druids are philosophers and teachers, and distinguished from seers. To others again, such as Pliny, they were the priests of the oak-ritual, whence their name was deri-ved.—Extracts from art. by Dr. Mackian in Celtic Mag. 1883-4, and Celtic religion by Prof. Anwyl.

'chron na 'mhath, a man that's neither good nor ill is more ill than good—duine gun mhath gun chron, is also applied to a shiftless, thrift-less sort of man who is otherwise quite decent; an duine, the good-man of the house; an d. agamsa, my husband-d. is often applied to either men or women, as, am bheil d. a staigh? is anyone in ?; is fhèarr d. na daoine, a proper person is better than many men; ro-dh., an excellent man, man of rank; fladh-dh., wild man, salyr: d. gaoll, a male relative; d. math, good man. duine-nan-clag, the bell-man. Fear de m' dhaoine, one of my men, is a good exam-ple of the difference between fear and duine. The following remarks apply to W. of Rossshire. Duine means emphatically a married man. An unmarried man of any age is gille. man. An unmarried man of any age is gues, Fear is as colouriess, except as to sex, as "individual," "person," or "one," and is generally little more than a peg on which to hang an attribute. Cha robhe 'na dh. aig an an sin, he was not a (married) man at that time; A native would never commit himself so far as to ask "cò e an d. sin ? who is that man?" Bean is duine, is husband and wife (lit. wife and husband.) The precedence of the wife is possibly a relic of Pictish custom. The possibly a relic of Pictish custom. The phrase occurs in other parts, for example Perthshire, which was also in Pictland. In Arrun [& Argyllshire—AH] "fearagus bean" is the invariable usage. In Gairloch both phrases are used. In Lewis the latter, and more rarely "duine agus bean" are used. "Ga bheil na fir ud?" where are those fellows?" and the programment in reference to two pows used, for example, in reference to two boys, aged respectively two and three.—C.R. in Gael. Eadha, the aspen, the old name of the fifth let-ter of the Gaelic alphabet, and one of the Small vowels. It has various sounds. With the grave accent, (e) it sounds like e in there, as è, he; with the acute accent (é), like ai in fail, as, té, a female; cé, the earth. At the end of a word, it sounds like e in brother, as, duine, a man; roghnaichte, chosen. è! inter. Ay! ay!; è!è! exclamation of sur-

è, pers. pron. He, him, it. Written sè when it precedes e. [This is an artificial rule and has rarely been followed.] Marbhaidh sè è, he will kill him. "Gu ma h-è dhuit" alone, may be used as a threat; when followed by gu'n and a clause, it expresses an earnest hope, as, gu ma h-e dha gu'n tig e, God grant that he may come.

The following remarks about the distin-

U, guishing features between the North and South dialects of Scottish Gaelic through the occurrence of eu or ia in various words, are extracted from an article by Rev. C. M. Robertson, in Celtic Review, October, 1906. Most Gaelic Grammars and Dictionaries say that the North and South dialects of Gaelic are distinguishable by their respective uses of eu and ia in certain words, but no detailed list is ever given.

"Dr. MacBain says the crucial distinction between the two main dialects of Gaelic consists in the different way in which the dialects deal with é derived from compensatory lengthening—in the south it is eu, in the north ia. Another characteristic of the words in which Another characteristic to the work are this change is found is that their original stems ended in o or a. There are exceptions, drawn in, perhaps, by the influence of analogy.

The vowel that changes to ia in the north is usually written eu, but it occurs also as èa, èi and è. In southern pronunciation it generally has the sound that is called open e, and that resembles, except that it is long, that of e in English let. The close sound e, like that of e in English whey or of a in English fate, occurs occasionally in words that have is in the north, but in general is confined to those words in which diphthongisation is not found, as, beum, ceum, treun, bend. In contact with nasals diphthongisation. tion is found as a rule only in those instances in which the vowel is nasalised in the south, e.g. in eun, meur, but not in beum, treun.

Of the words that have ia in the north, the Ceudna 'ceunna,' 'féirseag '(for feursann), geur, reustladh (for reusladh), sleuchd, in Arran.

Sgeun ('sgéan') and déabh in Islay, geuban in Islay & Perth.

Céud (first) and céud (hundred) in Mid-Argyll.

Créadhach (crè), in Perth.

In Strathspey and in Sutherlandshire there are fewer instances of ϵ than in Arran. The only words showing the change to $i\alpha$, that are not known to have δ , in place of ϵ , in some district or other, are ceud, ceudna, deug, feudail, feun, genban, peurtag, reul, reuseil, there there are horrowed and reusan, and of these, three are borrowed words, while the diphthongisation of at least two others, feudail and reul, is local and exceptional. The association of the change to ia with the open sound è is thus very close. The tendency, apparently, when the vowel The tendency, apparently, when the vowel happens to be left undiphthongised in the north, is to sound it \(\ellip',\) and further, the vowel is apt in such cases to be \(\ellip' also \) in Arran and Islay, but \(\ellip' \) in Perth, Strathspey and Sutherland. Beurla, \(\ellip', g\), is b\(\ellip' urlain arran. Islay, North Argyll, part of Skye, North Inverness and West Ross, but \(\ellip' \) burlain in Perth. and Sutherland; geug is géug in Arran, Islay, part of Skye and Lewis, but gèug in Perth, Stathspey and Sutherland.

The vowels that are subject to diphthongisation are arranged in the following groups to sation are arranged in the following groups to show the occurrence of the change in the southern dialect, in Arran, Islay and Perthshire, and in the northern dialect in the following districts in order, North Argyll (Appin and Sunart), Skye (Sleat), North Inverness-shire(the Aird, south and east of Beauly), West Ross-shire, and Lewis. The pronnuciation given in MacAlpine's Dictionary is, in general, that of his native island and is thut given here under the name Islay. The abgiven here under the name Islay. The absence of a word from the list for any particular district does not in all cases imply non-diphthongisation of the vowel in that dis-trict; it may mean that there is some other alteration on the word, or that the attempt to ascertain its pronunciation has not been attended with success. Smeuraich, for example, is smeòraich in Sutherland and Lewis. Feusgan, mussel; fè, a caim; and muir-tèachd, a jelly-fish, (11. iii. below), are not in Dr. Henderson's list for the Aird, and were unfamiliar as Aird words to an aged farmer from the district. Cè, cream, is unknown in several districts, uachdar or bàrr being used instead, and smeur, bramble, is unfamiliar in Lewis. Geug, branch, no doubt owes its non-diphthoughsation in parts of the northern Hebrides to its disuse during a treeless period and its subsequent adoption from literature. In West Ross-shire, giag was not disused, but was degraded during the treeless period, and now means, in part at least of the district, a stalk of heather, while a branch of a tree is called meur (' miar ').

VI. ii. Earlais (arles), reusan (reason). Group I. contains words that are diphthongised in the South; all have ia (or iao) in Perthshire, all but the last in Islay, and all but the last three in Arran. MacAlpine gives 'a cheud' or 'a chiad.' The diphthong is ia in all the instances in Arran, and iv

Glenlyon in Perthshire; in East Perthshire and in the North generally in those words, with the exception of breagh, it is i.a.o. i.e. the second constituent of the diphthong is not the second constituent of the diphenong is accuraged a but the Gaelic ao sound. Ceudna varies; 'ciaodna' N. Argyll, 'cianda' N. Inverness, West Ross, Sutherland, 'ciaont' Lewis, 'ciaodainn' East Perth, Strathspey, 'céunna' dainn' East Perth, Strathspey, 'céunna' Arran, 'ciaonna' Skye. MacAlpine gives 'cianna' and apparently 'ceudna.'

In addition, dreuchd, omitted by MacAlpine, has ia in Arran, and earlais and reusan, Group VI. ii., have ia, the former in Arran and Islay, and, the latter throughout Argyll and Islay, and, the latter throughout Argyll and in West Perth ('riaosan' in N. Argyll). Nèaraidh (V, ii.) has ia in Perthshire. Groups I, and II. i. have the diphthong in N. Argyll, Skye, N. Inverness, W. Ross and Lewis; Group II, ii. in N. Argyll et seq., except Lewis, and Group II, iii. in N. Argyll et soq., except N, Inverness. Group III. falls to be added to the number in Skye and onwards, and Group IV. in N. Inverness and onwards. The words in V. i. ii. and iii. all have ia in N, Inverness, and those in V. ii. in onwards. The words in V. 1. 11. and iii. all have ia in N. luveruess, and those in V. ii. in West Ross also. Trèasg in N. Argyll, and sleuchd in Skye have ia. Nèarachd is 'niarachd' in N. Argyll, 'miarachd' in Skye, and 'meurachd' according to MacAlpine (sub proposed) is threely in the control of the cont néarachd) in Argyll.

The words of VI, i. have ia as follows:—
Eud (and eudunhor, 'iadar') càl-feurain, spleuc, and lèabag in N. Argyll.

Spleuc, teuchdadh, leabag and trean-ri-trean ('trianaidh-trian') in Skye. Beurla ('biaorla' or 'biaorla' so also Lochbroom), eud ('iad' in Barra also)'m'fheudail, gleus, and teuchdaidh in Lewis.

'Piata' a puny child, N. Inverness and W. Ross, has been explained by Dr. Henderson as a by-form of peata, English 'pet'; in Lewis 'piatan' is used affectionately of one craving for a drink.

Eud in the North generally means zeal, while jealousy is 'iadach' (in Gleniyon 'eud-Diphthongisation of the vowel & thus appears to be most prevalent in the central Highlands, and somewhat less so in N.Argyll It has extended strongly into and Lewis. Rannoch which breaks away from the rest of Pertushire in this respect, and is sharply distinguished from Glenlyon and the parish of Blair-Atholl, bounding it respectively on the south and east, and is in full force in Badenoch and Stratudearn, its eastern limits. On the other hand, Strathspey, which means in local usage the part of the valley of the Spey below Rothiemurchus, and lies in an angle between Badenoch on the south-west, and Strathdearn on the north-west, differs from both districts, and agrees closely with the South. Far north Sutherlandshire also, with the exception perhaps of the Assynt quarter of the county, claims to stand with Strathspey and the south in this matter. The words in which ia has been found in Strathspey are :-

ceudna, Di-ceudain, deug Ceud, ceud, sgreuch, breagh, sè, ceutach, seun.

With the exception of the two last, those words are diphthongised in Su herlandshire Creich, Kildonan, and Strathy—and with the following list, they exhaust the known instances of that yowel change in the southeast and in the north of that county :-Deuchainn, feuch, feusgan, cia meud, reul, crè.

Beul, neul, sgeul, 'cial.'

Ceutach and feusgan have the diphthong in Ceutach and teusgan have the triphthoug in Creich, deuchainn and feuch in Creich and Kildonan, reul ('rialt' or more frequently 'rialtag') in Kildonan, and erè ('criaodhach') in Kildonan and Strathy. Ceutach and ceutadh apparently are diphthongised by some speakers and not by others ('cèutach' and ceutu') in the Strathy district.

The southern è of beul, neul, and sgeul is changed in Sutherland, not into ia, but into à, so that the words would be written respecta, so that the world would be wheth respectively, beal, nyal, and sgeal, and are pronounced by al, nyal, sgyal. Cial, brim of a vessel, is also changed into ceal in Sutherland. Though this resembles in the result the change in Arran of brèagh, cè cream, crè, gèadh, and sè, respectively into breagh (brè or bryà, Mac-Alpine), ceà, creà, geàdh, seà (br'à, cyà, cr'à, gyà, shà), it is no doubt to be compared rather with the transference in Gaelic generally, of the pronunciation from e to a in such words as geal, ('gyal,') seal, ('shal,') &c.

A substitution of other sounds for è some-

A substitution of other sounds for e some times occurs. Lèabag is leòag ('lyòag') in N. Inverness, W. Ross, Lewis, and Sutherland; feusag is feòasg (fyòag) in Sutherland; and reapach is reopach in N. Inverness. Teuchaidh viscid, in N. Inverness tiachaidh, is teaochaidh in Creich, and beurla is beaorlaidh. in Strathspey, and in parts of Skye and Le-wis. The name for the landrail-trèan-ritrèan—is traon in Lewis and, according to MacAlpine, in Skye; in Ireland it is traona,

[but pronounced trevna, in Uist treona.]
It is not an unknown thing that a word should come to have two pronunciations acsnound come to have two profundations accompanied by some differentiation in meaning or usage. In N. Argyll, Skye, N. Inverness, W. Ross, and Lewis, settd, when it means jewel, is 'séud,' but when it means hero it is 'siad.' The word is everywhere in those districts familiar in the latter sense. As séud, jewel, it is not at all so frequently used, and may have been adopted from literaused, and may have been adopted from itera-ture. Meud is undiphthongised throughout Sutherland, except in the phrase 'co miad' how much. The phrase is 'ce mlod' in Skye and Lewis, while the word otherwise is both 'miod' and 'miad' in Lewis, and 'miad-achd' in Skye, and also in N. Argyll. Mac-Alpine gives 'meud' and 'miod.' The un-Appine gives 'meuu' and 'miod.' The un-diphthongised form of deug is kept in Perth, Strathspey, W. Ross, and Lewis in 'da uair dhéug,' often preceded by the article and com-pressed 'an da'r 'dug' 'the twelve o'clock; in Sutherland 'an da'r 'iaog.' In Irish 'dareug' means twelve persons.

eug' means twelve persons, Similar diphthongisation is found in Munster in such words as ceud, deug, eun, feuch, feur, and also in words in which it is unknown in Scotland, as breun, eug, treun, and even eudochas, eudtrom, light, eugofir, injustice, eugmhais want, and others. To Scottish Gaels the diphthongisation of eucoir and eugmhais not to speak of endeabs or and eugmhais, not to speak of eudochas or actrom (for eutrom), seems a sheer impossibility, and yet it is found with us in the word easgaidh, i.e. eu-sgith, of exactly similar for-mation."

[N.G.P. says "The practice of going air faoighe," was common in the Highlands, and was also known in the Lowlands of Scotland. In the 'good old times,' when dearth was as common as a bad season, it was not considered degrading for respectable people to go for-aging among their friends for grain, wool, &c. This kind of begging was also practised by or for young couples about to marry or newly for young couples about to marry or newly married, to help them in setting up house. The custom is now (1880), I think, obsolete. It was still partially practised in 1830." [†faoighle, s.pl. Words, expression. faoighleanu, -leinn, -an, see faoileann. faoighreadly, s.m. s. see feaman. feamain,* feamainn, feamnach, s.f. Seaweed of all kinds. cast ware, whether growing on the rocks or cast ashore. 2§ Rosebay, see seileachan Frangach—a common name for plants growing near water, especially if long-stalked. [Badge of the MacNeills.]

In Skye, Levus, &c., the red or tangle sea-weed is called bruchd, and the cutting sea-weed an fheanainn. In Uist the red seaweed is called feanainn dearg, as distinguished from the black seaweed, which they cut on the rocks round the shore, and which is called feamainn dubh. Feamainn is the general name for all kinds of seaweeds, but there are names for the different kinds. F. dearg, or barr dearg, as it is sometimes called, is red sea-weed. In Uist the red seaweed, which is cast ashore in May, June and July, and of which kelp was made, is called am bragaire. The cutting seaweed, an fheamainn ghearraidh, is known as (a) feamainn dubh, which does not float, it includes aona-chasach and baiteach— (PM); (b) feamainn bhuidhe or bhuidheagach, which floats; (c) gleadhrach, which also floats; and (d) feamainn chirean or chireag. It is known as feamainn chireanach in Uist, and f. chireag in Skye and Lewis. It is only a few inches in length, and grows only on rocks that are seldom under the water during neapare seldom under the water during neaptides. It has a strong laxative property, often being plucked off the rocks and hoiled, when it is given to eattle that are suffering from dryness—JM. In Harris the long seaweed that can be reached when the tide is very low is called langadal, in Uist rockd.—(DMC) In Loch Eue red tangle is called feamain dearg and barra-stamh.—(DU) All seaweed cast ashore is called when in a heap on beach bruchd, otherwise it is feamainn on beach bruchd, otherwise it is feamainn churra. The very same seaweed if cut from the rock by hand is called feamainn ghearrta. —(DMy)] feannag, aige, an, s.f. ¶Carrion-crow—corvus corone. 2 Rook. 3 Rig, a ridge of ground generally used for growing potatoes, and sometimes also for raising corn, the seed being laid on the surface and covered with earth dug out of trenches along both sides. The term "lazy-bed" applied to it in English is merely a southern odium on the system of farming in Gaeldom, where soil was scarce, and where bog-land could not be cultivated in any other way. Gheibheadh tu na feannagan-firich, you would find the forest crows said to persons who boast of doing impracticable things; ars' an seòladair anns a' chrannaig—" tha e ro mhor do fheannaig, agus ro bheag do fhearainn," quoth the suilor in the cross-trees—"it is too much for a rig and too little for a lot." This sentence is translated in Campbell's West Highland Tales " it is too big for a crow, and too little for land." A.F. gives a modern application of this saying from personal experience, which makes the meaning clearer, and as he narrowly escaped with his life on the occasion, the words and their application are indelibly fixed in his memory. When out fishing in the Sound of Sleat, in his youth, and overtaken by a storm, an old fisherman who was at the helm told the boys who were rowing to keep a sharp look-out for land, as the evening twilight was fast failing. One of the latter suddenly cried out "Chi mi feannagan A Néill! tha sinn faisg air a' Chill bhig." After taking a delitaisg air a' Chill bhig." After taking a deli-berate survey (no easy matter in the circum-stances), N. replied "Cha'u 'eil fhios am au e, 'illean, tha e ro'mhór de dh' fheanmag agus ro bheag do dh' fhearran, ach dh' fhaodadh gnr e an t-eilean mór a th' ann," (I dou't know, boys, it seems too big for a rig and too small for the land, but perhaps it's the large island)—which it was. island)-which it was.

féin, pers. pron. Self. Used only as an adjunct to nouns or other pronouns. Mi-fhéin, myto nouns or other pronouns. self; thu-shein, thyself; iad-shein, themselves.
When combined with a possessive pronoun it may be translated by own, as mo mhac-fein, my own son; siod fhein e mar iolair, that same is he, like an eagle; mar seo fhein, in this very way; an seo thein, in this very place; an sin fein, then and there; an diugh fein, this very day; 'cheana fein, already; cha'n fhaigh duine an t-uisge féin 'san àite seo gun a chean-nach, one cannot get even water here without paying for it; is duine dona gun fheum, a chuireadh cuireadh orm fhéin is caitheamh, he is a pitiful fellow who would invite me and leave me to pay—a strange use of fein.

It is a peculiarity of the Northern dialect of Gaelic that it makes a distinction in the pronunciation of fein when that word is used with the first personal pronoun, Generally it is fhin in that connection, as, mi-rhin, sinn-fhin, crnn-fhin—thu fhéin 's mi-fhin. In Suth'd from Strathy Water to Durness, instead of eight from Strathy water to Duriess, instead of either field or film with the first person, they say fhein, mi-fhean, &c., and in the remainder of Strathy and in the S.E. of the county, they say fhian, mi-fhian, leam-fhian, sinn-fhian, in in one sheunadh fhan, I will charm my-self. In other connections the word is fhein in the North, as it is in all connections in the South.

[Miss Eleanor Hull's Textbook of Irish Literature says "The file is to be regarded as in the earliest times comto be regarded as in the earliest times combining in his person the functions of magician, lawgiver, judge, counsellor to the chief and poet. Later, but still at a very early time, the offices seem to have been divided, the brehons devoting themselves to the study of law, and the giving of legal decisions, the druids arrogating to themselves the supernadruids arrogating to enemiseries the superna-tural functions, with the addition, possibly, of some priestly offices, and the filt them-selves being regarded henceforth principally as poets and philosophers. This division seems to have already existed in Ireland in the time of St. Patrick, whose preaching brought him into constant opposition with the druids, who were evidently, at that time, regarded as the religious leaders of the nation, though there does not seem to be much sign that they there does not seem to be much sign that they were, as they undoubtedly were, even at an earlier age in Britain and Gaul, sac ificing priests. We have already spoken of the belief in transmigration, as being a part of the early mythology both of Britain and Ireland. It is to be understood that the Irish pagan belief does not exactly correspond with Caparis observations regarding the teaching of belief does not exactly correspond what co-sar's observations regarding the teaching of the druids in Gaul. In the pagan literature of Ireland, we find no trace of a belief in a life after death. The mortals that went into Magh Mell, or the Irish pagan Elysium, did Magn Mell, or the Irish pagan Elysium, did not go there by means of, or after, death; they went as visitors, who could at will re-turn again to earth. The distinction is es-sential. Until after the introduction of Christian teaching, the idea of a life after death seems to have been non-existent. Both the re-incarnations and the entrance into Magh Mell were made during the coninto Magh Mell were made during the continuance of mortal life; they have no reference to a life beyond the grave. Outside the sphere of the ancient mythology, the belief in transmigration is found also to persist; it

g, gort, ivy, the seventh letter of the Gaelic alphabet now in use. When this letter is followed by one or more of the vowels a, o, u, it sounds nearly like g in gap, goose, or rather, it is sounded harder than g, and not so hard as c. G, at the end of a word, if preceded by one or more of the vowels a, o, u, or a liquid, sounds most frequently like k in rook, hook, as, rug, bore; thug, gave; (pron. rook, hook.) Gh, before a, o or u, has an aspirated power, to which there is no correspondent sound in English, but when followed by e or i, it sounds like y in ye, as, gheibh, will get. Gh, at the end of words or syllables is seldom pronounced at all, as, faigh, get; rioghachd, a kingdom. When g, is preceded by i, or followed by e or i, it has a mellow sound, like g in girl, as, gin, produce; góire, sharpness. In conversation g is often elided in agam, agad, againn, agaibh. In Arran, it is elided also in Gilleasbuig, Eanruig, thàinig, Domhnas Casg (Easter Sunday), and in sealg in là shealg na cubhaige; is preserved in Sasgunn, though not in Sasunnach; and in some instances it has become t or d after s at the end of a syllable, as uiste (for uisge, water); sothaisde-

g, (for ag) prep. At. This prep. when prefixed to infinitives or verbal nouns gives them ed to infinitives or verbal nouns gives them the force or meaning of the present participle. G is used between two vowels, as, tha mi g ol, I am (at) drinking; cò seo 'g aom air 'luirg' l'uhough ay might well be written in all such instances in prose. When preceded by a consonant, or followed by a vowel, it is written entire, as, bha 'anam ag éirigh gun fhiamh, his soul was rising fearlessly. Ag is sometimes used, even though followed by a consonant, as, gathanna liomhta ag tearnadh, sonant, as, gathanna lìomhta ag tearnadh, polished darts descending. Between two consonants the g is often dropped, as Turloch a' caoidh a chloinne, T. bewailing his children.

Gloin Glass. 2 Drinking 'na gh. uinneig, a pane, cinnidh uisge 'na gh. cruaidh, water shall turn into hard glass; g, nan druidh, the druids' glass or druids' egg-called in the south of Scotland, adderstanes;

g. uisge-beath, a glass of whisky.

[Gloine-nan-druidh was in high esteem among the Druids. It was one of their distinguishing badges, and was accounted to possess the most extraordinary virtues There is a passage in Pliny's Natural History, book xix, minutely describing the nature and proper-ties of this amulet. The following is a translation of it. "There is a sort of egg in great repute among the Gauls, of which the Greek writers have made no mention. A vast number of serpents are twisted together in sum-mer, and coiled up in an artificial knot by their saliva and slime; and this is called the serpent's egg. The Druids say that it is tossed in the air with hissings, and must be caught in a cloak before it touches the earth. The person who thus intercepts it, flies on horseback; for the serpents pursue him until prevented by intervening water. This egg, though bound in gold, will swim against the stream. And as the magi are cunning to conceal their frauds, they give out that this egg must be obtained at a certain age of the moon. I have seen that egg as large and round as a common-sized apple, in a chequered cartilaginous cover, and worn by the Druids. It is wonderfully extolled for gaining law-suits, and access to kings. It is a badge which is worn with such ostentation, that I knew a Roman knight, a Vocontian, who was slain by the stupid emperor Claudius, merely because he wore it in his breast when a law-suit was pending." Huddleston's edition of Toland gives some very ingenious conjectures on the subject of this enigmatical Druids' on the subject of this enigmental Drings egg. The amulets of glass and stone, which are still preserved and used with implicit faith in many parts of Scottish Gaeldom, and are conveyed, for the cure of diseases to a great distance, seem to have their origin in this bauble of ancient priestcraft. -]

gradain, pr.pt. a gradanadh, v.a. Parch grain preparatory to grinding it

gradan, ain, s. m. Expeditious mode of drying grain for the quern by burning the straw. 2 The meal obtained from such grain. 3 Snuff hastily prepared by pounding dry leaves of tobacco in a mortay. 4‡‡ Kind of snuff called "Lund-f. of." "Gradan was corn or meal prepared after the ancient custom of the Gael. A woman sitting down, took a handful of corn and holding it in her left hand by the stalks, she set fire to the ears, which were at once in a flame. In her right hand she held a stick, with which she dexterously beat the grain out the very instant the husks were quite burnt. By this simple process, corn may be cut down, winnowed, ground, dried and baked within half-an-hour. In separating the meal from the husks, instead sieves, they made use of a sheepskin stretched on a hoop, minutely perforated by a small hot iron. The bread which is thus made is considered very salubrious, and is extremely pleasant to the palate of the Gael'

-* In Uist, where the three processes, ealachadh, eararadh and gradan, may still be seen practised, the means employed are practically the same as described above. The grain end of the sheaf is put into the flame of the fire; when the chaft and ends of the straw are well alight, the sheaf is held over a clean-swept part of the hearth, or over some vessel, when the grain drops off.—DC.

gu, prep. To, towards. Cuiridh mi litir chugad, I will send a letter to you; chuige is uaithe, to and fro; gu fichead, to twenty. [Governs dative case.] Gu is generally omitted in Argylishire when speaking of the cardinal points, as tha mi falbh an iar, I am going (to the) west; tha mi 'scalltainn deas, I am tooking tenged the south but in Skue and the ing toward the south ; but in Skye and the my toward the sound; but in skye and the North the gu is generally inserted, as, tha mi dol gu deas, I am going to the south. In Gairloch, Lochalsh & Lochbroom they say "a' dol gu deas" and "gu tuath," but "a' dol an ear agus an iar (gu pronounced dho.) Gu in these cases is not good idiom; gu implies reaching vanu destination but you care reaching your destination, but you can never reach the N., S., E. or W. It may be mentioned here, under gu, that a strange effect of the migrations from the south side of the Moray Firth is heard in a common English expression among the people of E. Ross generally where they use such comical phrases as, I am going west to the kitchen, I am going east to the room, -but the place indicated as east is often almost due north. [In certain districts of Perthshire all places are either east or west.] This disappearance of to in English when speaking of the cardinal points is worth noting. At first sight it appears as though the Gaelic idiom of the south had been translated into the English of the north, but the English idiom has really no connection with Gaelic. Gu is used locally in Suth'd in place of the usual a before infinitives, as, gu àrach an an-ma, to nourish their souls.

seilg nan sliabh, to the mountain-chase; g. crich mo shaoghail, to my life's end; air dol gu neo-ni, gone to nothing; gu là bràth, for ever; blia ihna gu leth, a year and a half. [Gu here does not mean to, but is a remnant of con, with, and is only found in a few sentences, as, "bliadhna gu leth," "gu Mac' Ic Alasdair 's Lochial."]

When gu comes before an adjective, the adj. is translated into English as an adverb, as, math, good, gu math, well; buileach, effectual, gu buileach, effectually. Armstrong says "Gu has often a similar effect on a substantive, as, beachd, observation, gu beachd, clear-ly; dearbh, proof, gu dearbh, truly, indeed," but both words are adjectives—"gu beachd" is an Irishism in the Psalms, "beachd" being an adjective in Irish. Chi thu chugad e, 's cha'n fheairrd thu agad e, you'll see it coming to you, and you'll be none the better when you

gu, adv. Till, until.
gu, cony. That, to the end that. Used to signify a wish or idea, and implies that a sentence which is not expressed precedes the clause it introduces. (Tha e fior) gu'n tugadh crodh Chailein dhomh bainn' air an raon, (it is true) that Colin's cat'le would give me milk on the that Colin's cavie would give me mile on the plain; (is e mo mhiann-sa) gu'n robh móran maith agad, (it is my wish, that you may have good--a way of returning thanks; (is e mo mhiann-sa) gu'm bu slàn a chi mi thu, (it is my wish) that I may see you well! gu ma fada beo an righ! long live the king! slàn gu'n robh an Gàidheal gasda, may the gallant Celt. be hale. Gu is used in poetry if the nominative precedes the verb, and also to give greater emphasis, as, fiamh aiteis aird, gu'n robh 'na ghruis, an appearance of exceeding joy was in his face; nam bu duine eile gu'n deanadh, bu mhise gu'n dioladh, had another man done bu mhise gu'n dionath, mae abandir, it, it's I would avenge it. In negative expressions nach takes the place of gu, O ! (is truagh) nach robh mi 'nam chalman, O! (it is sad) nach robh mi 'nam chalman, O! (it is sad) that I were not a dove.—MacKay's Easy G. Syntax.

H h

h, Uath, the hawthorn-tree. The eighth letter of the Gaelic alphabet now in use. It is used in Scottish Gaelic not properly as a letter, for no word commences with it, but simply as a sign of aspiration, in the same way as the dot used over consonants in Irish Gaelic. is used over consonants in Irish Gache. When it is prefixed to a word beginning wich a vowel, it has the same degree of aspiration as h in hall, hurt—na h-o'g nean, the mails; na h-oidhche, of the night. It is also required between the negative ni and the following word, if it begin with a vowel—ni he, not he; ni h-eadh, no; ni h-iad, not they; ni h-fleudar, must not. fheudar, must not.

Before an initial vowel, h is sometimes in serted, and sometimes not, after certainwords. In Skyr, the tendency is to insert that letter as shown by Mary MacPherson in her book of poems-after prepositions, le h-aiteas, pp. 35, 110; re h-ùine, p. 44; after gur, mur & ge, gur a h-e, and gur h-e, that it is, both p. 289; gur h-ise bhios soua, that it is she that will be happy, 91; 's gur h-onair dha ar dùthaich thu, 38; gur h-uallach mo nighean dubn, 307; mur a h-e, 276; ge h-iomadh, though so many, notwithstanding how many, 37, 49.

i, Iogh, yew, the ninth letter of the Gaelic alphabet now in use. I has two sounds—(1) both long and short, long like ee in deem, as, sin, stretch; cir, comb; short like ee in feet, I has two sounds-(1) (only as feet is pronounced by a Scotsman) as, bith, existence; sir, seek. (2) short and obscure, like i in miss, as, is, am, art, are, in which particular case it does not give the sh sound to s.

imbhristeadh, (MS) s. m. Flutter. imbhuideal, (CR) s.m. [pronounced, imideal, m long.] Wooden keg or pail for carrying home milk and cream on the back from the sheilings. Sometimes carried on horseback, slung one on each side.—W. of Ross. The piece of skin tied over its mouth is called iolaman, and the piece of of string that ties the iolaman is snathaina imbhuideil. 2 (DC) In Uist, applied not to the pail or keg, but to the dressed skin used as a lid for the keg, and fastened, on the mouth of it by the snathainn imened, on the mouth of it by the snathainn imbuideil, a strong supple thong, which secures the skin lid, by tightening it between the two hoops on the edge of the pail or keg. When so fastened, the keg could be carried on one's back without spilling any milk, &c., it contained. The usual manner of carrying the kegs so secured, was in a "plaid" or sack made of muran or sea-bent sewn together. They are still made and used in some parts of Uist. 3(AF) Softy of a fellow. mechdimnich, v.a. & v. Walk round.

is, (AF) s. Ox. is, conj. And. [‡ Seemingly an idiomatic use of is, is—consider the idiom, ni e sin is mise an seo, he will do it and I here (lit. he will do it, I am here.) It is usually regarded as an abbreviation of agus, hence the forms a's and 'ts Is, according to Windisch, is not an abbreviation of agus. Et was the word originally (from Latin) brought into use as a monosyllabic copulative for the use of the bards. The old mouks wrote it e_l, and it gradually slipped into the form 7, still retained in printed Irish Gaelic. It is pronounced like is, pres ind. v def & irreg. Thus conjugated: Ind. pres. is mi, I am; is tu, thou art; is e, he is; is is, she is; is sin, we are; is sibh, you are; is iad, they are.

Ind. past, bu mhi, it was I, bu tu, it was thou; dc. [Also used with a present meaning are are a below.]

Ing, see note * below].
Sub), pres ma's mi, if it be I; ma's tu, if it be thou; dc. Ged is mi, though it is I, dc.
Sub), past, na'm bu mbi, if it were I, Gc.
Interr. pres., am mi? is it I; an tu? is it thou? an e, is it he? dc. Nach mi? is it not 1 ? &c.

Interr. past, am bu mhi, was it I? &c. nach bu mhi? was it not I? &c. Negative pres. cha mhi, it is not I; &c. past, cha bu' mhi, it was not I; &c.

It is remarkable that in the pret, interr. and negative, no part of the verb is is seen at all, the conjunctions am, cha, nach, gur, mur, &c. with the pronouns annexed to them, convey the sense as distinctly as if the verb were expressed. Nach e seo an t-each ban? (is) not this the white horse? This omission of the verb to be occurs in the same way in Welsh, as, nid bara a brynwyd, (it was) not bread that was bought.

Is is used in describing the name, profession, identity, state or condition, under which objects definitely exist or did exist—Is mise Peadar, I am Peter; is tu mo bhrathair, thou art my brother; is captean am fear ud, you fellow is a captain; is sarunn seo, this is iron; bu chlachair e, he was a mason; bu nàmhaid e, he was a fee; cha bu robairean iad, they were not robbers. When the subject is pointedly and emphatically expressed or addressed, the verb is is used, as, is tus' an duine, thou art the man. In many cases tha cannot be used in place of is. We cannot say, tha thus' an duine, tha thu mo run, tha seo umha, &c., we must say, is tus an dume, is tu mo run, is umba seo, &c. When an adjective is in the predicate, either be or es may be used, as tha a' chlach seo mor or es mor a' chlach i seo, this stone is great; tha do cheum mall or is mall do cheum, thy step is slow; but in all such cases when is is used the meaning is more emphatic. Is implies a more permanent state than tha; contrast "is learn e" with "tha e agam"; and "is i is mathair dhomh " with " tha i 'na màthair dhomh."

Is ann cha'n ann, the fact is that it is not so; is math an airidh, it is well deserved; is math an airidh e, he well deserves it; ma's fior dhuit e, if it is the truth (as told) to you; c' ait' an tamh dhuit ? where is your abode?; an slan dhuit ? are you well; nach e seo an teach ban ? is not this the white horse?; cha bu gheamhna dhuinn air móran barrachd, it would not be good enough for us even though much more were offered (lit. for much more); na'm b' fhìor sin, or ma b' fhìor sin, were it not a sham.

² Bu, is also used with a present meaning, as, cha bu tu mi, 's cha bu mhi 'n cù you are not I and I am no cur-a Celtic way of telling a man the is a hound; the but u bean a' mharsanta mhòir, you are not as the big merchant's wife you do not do as she does. Bu, is, of course, an entirely different word to is, but as it is generally treated by grammarians as the past tense of is, examples of its use have been in-serted here under that word, to enable read-ers to find them without difficulty.

is og leam (e), I think (it) young. is olc leam, I regret.

is one team, regree. is toigh leam, is taigh leam, see is toigh leam, is taitneach leam (e), (it) is plasant to me, is toigh leam, I prefer, like or tove, is trom leam sin, I think that heavy, is trungh leam, I pity, am to be puted.

1, luis, the quicken tree. The tenth letter of the Gaelic alphabet now in use. When it is preceded by itself, or by any other consonant, and followed by a, o, or a, it has a broad lingual sound, to which there is none like in the English language; as, lan, full; lom, bare; lus, a herb. When l is immediately followed by e or i, it is pronounced like the Italian glingle or ali, as, lift, a letter; linn an area. in gle or gli, as, litir, a letter; linn, an age. In the case of nouns beginning with l, if the mase, poss, pron. go before, l is pronounced as in English; as, a litir, his letter; which differs essentially in sound from, a litir, her letter. With regard to verbs beginning with A the preterite is pronounced as in English, and in most other situations it is pronounced as II. The letter l when aspirated is not followed by h in writing, and the difference between the plain and aspirated sounds is generally only distinguishable to a keen ear, and is almost lost on most people, but when labhair, speak, which is plain, and labhair e, he spoke, which is aspirated, are correctly pronounced, the difference should be easily discernible.

leum-iochd, s.m. Balk. Is fhèarr l. a's t-Fhoghar na sguab a bharrachd, a balk in autumn better than a sheaf the more—the leum-iochd or bailc (Scots bank), is a strip of a corn-field left farrow. The fear of being left with the last sheaf of the harvest, called the "cailleach" or "gobhar bhacach," always led to an exciting competition among the reapers in the last field. The reaper who came on a lemmiochd would of course be glad to have so much the less to cut. Rev. Mr. Michie of Dinnet has heard the above saying used in a different sense in the Highlands of Aberdeenshire, viz. that in lands allotted on the run-rig system, the crofter who got a balk attached to his rig was considered luckier than his neighbour with a somewhat larger rig, but without the balk, the grass of which was of more than compensating value.—N.G.P.

a, muin, the vine. The eleventh letter of the Gaelic alphabet now in use. When m has its simple sound, it is articulated much the same as in other languages, as, mor, great; caman, a club; lom, bare. When m is aspirated, that is, when it is immediately followed by h, a new combination or letter is formed, somewhat like v in English, as, a mhuineal, his neck; tamh, rest. Dialectally, though never at the beginning of words, mh is often pronounced like a nasal oo, as, ramh, an oar; and sometimes mh is entirely mute in the middle and at the end of words, as. comhnard, level; domh, to mo; but nasality generally attaches to the vowel preceding the elision. a cont. for am, art., used after words ending with a vowel. 634

There appears to be considerable confusion in the Appears to be considerable confusions in the tip proverbs, & ",regarding the first three significations given above for Mart, as is exemplified in the following notes from Nicolson's Gaelic Proverbs (NGP), Waifs & Strays (W), and Carmina Gadelica (AC) to have been moveable, and depended for the time of their commencement upon whether the suitable weather had already arrived. If the weather had not come, neither had the month, e g. Luath no mall g'an tig am Magh, thig a' chubhag, (ate or early as May weather comes), so comes the cuckoo The names of several mouths, or rather periods, of various lengths occur twice, while Mart occurs no less than three times.

The comparatively modern Mart O.S., which is still in vogue in some parts, (says AC in speaking of the months in general) being still used in an O.S. manner, does not commence until the orthodox calendar month is half gone. AC i. 245, it. 263, & NGP 413, both make Mart extend into April. Nicolson appears to have been puzzled, for his explanations are obscure. On p. 26 (NGP) he translates au ciad Mhart." as the first Tuesday, while from a note explaining the same proverb, it is evident that he thought

Mart stood for March.
The first Tuesday of the sowing-time or times, would appear to be "An ctad Mnart de Mhart-na-curachd," in the same way as there was a Bealltuinn of the Bealltuinn and a Liunas a Beantounn of the Beantounn and a Liunas dal. AC gives "gauth gheur nam Mart" (pt.) NGP p 26 speaks of three Marts. W. iii, 218, 298, 299 speaks of three—Apl. 12 to May 1, Aug. 12, Sept. 12—(This triple occurrence of 12 is noteworthy.)

NGP says 1st. week of April is too soon to sow, so he would appear to prefer the 2nd or 3rd. week. Is fhearr an sneachd na 'bhi gun sian, an déidh an siol a chur 'san talamh, better snow than no rain-storm, when the seed is in the ground, (p. 251) shows that sowing were better done when snow is out of season, 1. e. late in April. AC says seed is winnowed by "gaoth gheur nam Mart," before being sown, therefore the Mart or Marts must be nearly over, i.e late in April, before the seed is in the ground. W. gives Apl. 12 to May 1, i.e. late in April. Another proverb, (NGP. 24) Am feur a thig a mach 'sa Mhart, théid o staigh 'sa Ghibleau, the grass that comes out in March shrinks away in April, implies that seed should not appear till Mart be over, or else it will be killed by the weather.

On the other hand, NGP gives Is thearr aon oidhche Mhàirt na tri là Foghair (for growth), so the seed, to judge by this, ought to be coming up in March, or else that sowing ought to be done earlier. [It is most likely that it is not growth which is referred to in this proverb, as Nicolson supposes, but the winnowing referred to by AC.] NGP says Tuesday for sowing, AC prefers Friday. There was also the "flor," or suitable Mart. mart, airt, s m. Cow or steer tattened for killing. The common expression was m.-lambair, or m. thained. (It. a bright of Mart.
